A STRAY PIGEON

A pigeon with leg band, on which is the inscription AU32G645, is being entertained at the home of John F. Abbott, Matineus, whither it came a week or so ago. Mr. Abbott is feeding the bird and shutting it up at night so that it will not furnish a feast for the house cat.

SERVING AMERICA

Now is the time for all members of Legion Posts to go to their own aid and help their Department get an early start in the race for pre-eminence in membership

Everything points to a big Legion year in 1936, and the bigger the membership the easier it will be for the organization to achieve its major objectives which the National Convention in St. Louis determined upon.

No man who saw service in the World War should be outside the Legion ranks, for its record of peace-time service is a challenge to greater deeds for America.

The command is forward for God and Country, more than a million strong.

The popularity of amateur night was demonstrated last night when the custom was revived at Park Theatre before a large audience. Ben Dowling acted as master of ceremonies, and the contestants were under the direction of Miss Adelaide Cross.

These winners were announced: First, Marion Peit of Thomaston, $5; second, Barbara Newbert of Rockland and Alfred Chapman of Thomaston, $3; third, Thomas Pietrosky of Rockland, $2. In the confusion of awarding Barbara Newbert was overlooked, but the patrons recognized her claim to the prize and Manager Dandeneau gladly provided a duplicate. Entrants for next week's amateur night contest which will be held Friday night, will leave their names at the box office. Rehearsal will be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

I see where a Western woman is able to shoot a coin right out of her husband's fingers.

Well, isn't that the limit? They're bound to get it one way or another, aren't they?

AIRPLANE ROUNDUP

American Legion Outfit Will Arrive In Rockland At Noon Tomorrow

The Maine Department of the American Legion intends to get the "hop" on all other departments on early returns of 1936 membership, when on Sunday, the annual airplane round-up will be conducted to pick up the paid-up membership cards from all sections of the state. Visiting eight of the larger "key" communities, the plane carrying Maine department officers will be met by representatives of Posts adjacent to the points of call, who will turn over the membership cards with brief ceremonies at each airport.

Augusta, state headquarters of the Legion will be the point of departure for the plane and Legion officials. The Stinson cabin monoplane of the Gannett Publishing Company has been procured for this year's aerial round-up, and will be piloted by Gilbert Pond.

Department Commander Frank E. Southard of Augusta will be represented by Carl F. Fellows, also of Augusta, Grande Chef de Gare, La Societe des Quarante Hommes et Huit Chevaux. The "40&8" is pledged to promote membership in the parent organization, and Chief de Gare Fellows has been taking a particularly active part in this year's effort to place the Department of Maine amongst the leaders in early returns on 1936 membership.

Also numbered among the official party who will fly with Pilot Pond on Sunday will be Herbert A. Folsom of Augusta Maine department chairman of aviation.

F. A. Murphy Made Assistant General Freight Agent By Maine Central

F. A. Murphy promoted to general agent of the Maine Central Railroad with headquarters in Portland

Portland was announced yesterday. Murphy will assume his new duties Nov. 1.

In his new position he will give personal attention to waterborne traffic through the Port of Portland, and the announcement states, "It is believed that this arrangement, working in co-ordination with the Maine Central Railroad's office in New York city, will be helpful in the development of traffic through the port."

Murphy entered railroad service with the Washington County Railway at Calais in 1909. May 1, 1933, he was made general agent of the Joint Maine Central and Boston and Maine agency in New York.

Murphy is married and has four children. The family will shortly move to Portland.

"ALL DRESSED UP"

Between now and next Thursday many perfectly good pumpkins will be sacrificed on the altar of Halloween. Their illuminated presence is well nigh indispensable on this festive occasion. Thrust before an uncurtained window they are sometimes a bit startling, but the shouts of juvenile laughter which follow this act are always reassuring.

Guardians of Our Coast

THEY READ OF THE GUARDIANS

Those of our lighthouse readers and contributors who saw in the Thursday issue of this paper how much the Nebraska lady was interested in "Guardians of Our Coast," will understand how far the news of the lighthouses travels and how much interest the readers take in it. We hope our Keepers of the Lights will let us hear from them as often as possible, to the end that not only other keepers but also our readers all over the lot may be kept in touch with what takes place among these important and always interesting outposts.—Editor.

Matineus Rock

Greetings to all our friends along the coast.

Tender Ilex has landed our coal and also set a new mooring buoy. Sea Coast Mission boat Sunbeam called here on her way to Bar Harbor.

Rev. Mr. Bowsfield visited the station recently.

Mrs. Howard Ball left on the Sunbeam going to Bar Harbor, and will later proceed to Millbridge by automobile.

Norman Thompson of Matineus is building a 20-foot boat for Second Assistant W. E. Thompson.

Portland Head

The fine weather this fall is being enjoyed by all here and we are sure keepers and their families on outside stations are also delighting in it.

Keeper Roy Elwell of Spring Point Light recently called on R. T. Sterling.

Mrs. William Clark of South Portland, and guests Mrs. Edmund Howe, Mrs. Hebron Sawyer and Mrs. Albert Sawyer of Northeast Harbor were entertained at the Light Sunday by Mrs. R. Thayer Sterling. Mrs. H. Sawyer was looking up F. O. Hilt and family, who regret having been absent. They readily recall the pleasant days and evenings with the late Keeper Sawyer and Mrs. Sawyer at Bear Island Light when F. O. Hilt was in Sch. Lavinia Snow and went there with a load of coal. They hope Mrs. Sawyer will call again.

R. Thayer Sterling is having a few days' vacation in Boston, accompanied by Mrs. Sterling, son Robert and his friend.

The Hills returned Tuesday from St. George where they were guests of Mrs. Lucy E. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kinney, Miss Nannie Kinney and Mrs. Clyde Grant.

Fort Point

Visitors Sunday at this station included Capt. and Mrs. Frank O. Hilt of Portland Head Light; Mr. and Mrs. Earle R. Kinney, Mrs. Lucy Robinson of St. George; Mr. and Mrs. Florian Curtis and son Arthur, Miss Helen Curtis and Miss Rachel G. Robinson of Searsport.

Howard E. Colbeth, Lester B. Beal and Heinrich A. Jacobsen, government workmen, are repairing the fog signal tower and making other minor repairs at the station.

Mr. Colbeth and Mr. Beal were met here by their wives and together motored to their homes in Bucks Harbor for a visit over the weekend.

The Department of Commerce truck made a trip from Portland Friday to bring material for repair work. Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. George A. Lathrop of Stockton Springs were on a shopping tour in Bangor recently. Capt. F. O. Hilt is piloting a fine new eight-cylinder car.

THE BEST ANNUAL MEETING

Such the Verdict Of Those Who Attended Knox-Lincoln Farm Bureau Session

Lon Jewett of Head Tide was elected president of the Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau Thursday when the annual meeting was held at Camden Opera House with a record attendance. The fine program, the interest shown in the coming year's projects, and the review of the past year tended to make it an occasion which the agricultural fraternity will long remember.

President Henry Keller of West Rockport was in the chair, and the Eunice Morse, Foods Leader; Whitefield, Mrs. Hattie Hansen, Foods Leader.

White ribbons went to these communities for serving six to eight approved community meals: Camden, Mrs. Emelyn Bridges, Foods Leader; Sheepscot, Mrs. Geraldine Ross, Foods Leader; Simonton, Mrs. Henry Carner, Foods Leader; Union, Mrs. Belle Kenniston, Foods Leader; East Union, Mrs. Amelia Dornan, Foods Leader.

The judges were: Mrs. Rena Bowles, State Home Industry Specialist; Miss Jessie M. Lawrence, Home Demonstration Agent; and Mrs. Mildred Ricker, County Foods Project Leader.

A special recognition service was conferred by Jessie M. Lawrence, home demonstration agent, in the form of blue ribbons to the men who have been outstanding in forwarding the Kitchen Improvement contest in the county. The men who received this honor were: Harold Nash, E. M. Young, Camden; Donald Brownell, Hope; Albert Sutherland, Port Clyde; Harold Hunter, Damariscotta.

A pageant, "Queen Home Maker," was put on by Montsweag Community and directed by Mrs. Nellie Dowling, Wiscasset, was one of the major events of the day. This pageant presented in a pleasing way the Home Improvement Program that has been carried this year in the county by the home demonstration agent. Mrs. Lillian Fitch, Woolwich, was queen.

The playlet, "Planned vs. Jumbled," also exemplified Home Economics Extension Work in better planning. This was put on by Damariscotta Community with Mrs. Matilda Woodbury, Mrs. Viola Lucier and Mrs. Edna Gentner as characters.

"Clothes Line Gossip" presented by Orr's Corner Community and directed by Mrs. Marion Froelich was a comedy sketch.

Other items of interest on the program were: Songs, with guitar, Miss Cora Merry, Orr's Corner; reading, Mrs. Edle Hobbs, Damariscotta; solo, John Taylor, Camden; guitar and harmonica solo, Mrs. Plinette Allen, Miss L. MacInnis and Mrs. Hazel Mank, Montsweag; medley, "Old Songs My Mother Used To Sing," Mrs. Alice Oliver, Bristol; improvements made in Nobleboro Homes, Mrs. Edward Ball, Nobleboro; Harmonica Band, Boothbay Gainers 4-H Club. The song leader was John Taylor, Camden, with Mrs. Helen Wentworth as pianist.

Dinner was served at Meganticook Grange hall under the leadership of Mrs. Helen Packard, Mrs. Edna Start and Mrs. Lettie Bagley.

The exhibits were planned by the home demonstration agent, Miss Lawrence, and Mrs. Nina Carroll, Mrs. Marie Bisbee, Rockport; and Miss Ruth Clark, 4-H Club Agent assisted in setting them up.

The amount of canned and stored vegetables for one person for a year attracted a great deal of attention. Everyone was interested in what the people in Knox-Lincoln County are making to sell.

Electrical equipment was supplied by the Central Maine Power Co. Prince's Furniture Store exhibited the living room furniture. Brown's market supplied the vegetables and fruits.

The judges for the county canning contest were Mrs. Harold Dana, Thomaston, a former home demonstration agent; Miss Ruth Cluff and Miss Carrie Williams, Home Service Department, Central Maine Power Co.

The membership report was given by County Agent Wentworth. Many communities have won their 30 points and the total membership was ahead of the report as given last year at the annual meeting.

At a royal fête given in France in 1785, the king wore the flowers of the potato in his button hole and Marie Antoinette wore them in her hair.

Home Management—Mrs. Alice True, Hope.

Orchard—Clifton Walker, Alna.

Poultry—Elden Hunt, Damariscotta Mills.

Mrs. Mildred Ricker, county foods leader, of Nobleboro, made the awards in the "Square Meals For Health Contest" carried from Dec. 1 to Sept. 30. South Thomaston served the greatest number of approved meals and received a blue ribbon and a special prize of $2.50 from the Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau. Mrs. Annie Dennison received the award. Red ribbons went to the following communities for serving nine to eleven approved community meals: Boothbay, Mrs. Grace Reed, Foods Leader; Bristol, Mrs. Roxie Woods, Foods Leader; Hope, Mrs. Marjorie Beverage, Foods Leader; Rockland, Mrs.

PUBLICIZING OUR COAST

Information Bureau and Booklet, Sponsored By Lions, Has Worked Wonders

The Maine Coast Publicity Association, organized by Lions clubs of the Maine coast, and operating under the alert and aggressive management of King Lion George W. Dyer of the Camden-Rockport Club, has concluded a second successful season, and through the instrumentality of its information bureau at Camden and the booklet, "A Motor Tour of the Coast of Maine," Hundreds of these letters also requested maps and other literature, inquired about accommodations, houses and cottages to rent for a few weeks or the entire season.

Hundreds have been sent to the many hotels, inns, tourist homes, camps and eating places. Cottages and homes have been let, boats have been sold and many other things have been accomplished by this Association.

Another positive way to prove the value of this organization is by the figures supplied Manager Dyer by newspapers in the largest cities in this country and Canada, together with 75 newspapers stories about the coast of Maine which appeared in 75 different newspapers in 40 states and several Provinces of Canada. More than 5,000 persons have written the Maine Coast Publicity Association for "A Motor Tour of the Coast of Maine." Hundreds of these letters also requested maps and other literature, inquired about accommodations, houses and cottages to rent for a few weeks or the entire season.

Hundreds have been sent to the many hotels, inns, tourist homes, camps and eating places. Cottages and homes have been let, boats have been sold and many other things have been accomplished by this Association.

"OVER FIFTY BIRDS"

Capt. Bill Wincapaw Is the Baby Of This Aerial Organization

Capt. W. H. Wincapaw is the new baby of the Over Fifty Birds, and a very precocious baby furthermore.

The Over Fifty Birds is an organization of licensed airplane pilots who have passed their 50th birthdays and Capt. Wincapaw, although the youngest member, has logged more flying time than any of his elders—some 18,000 birds. He is one of New England's outstanding fliers.

Announcement of Wincapaw's acceptance into membership was received at the Boston airport Thursday by Gar Wood, Detroit sportsman and president of the club. Wood passed his 50 year mark Oct. 7. He is best known for his annual flight along the Maine coast on Christmas Day dropping Yuletide bundles at lighthouses and coast guard stations. He plans to carry out his rule of being Santa Claus again this Christmas.

Daring night flying in bad weather taking six persons from a Maine island to the mainland are among his achievements.

PONZI STAYED IN

Rally In Final Round Gave Him a Draw—Other Lively Bouts

Ponzi Cochran was down for the count of seven at the Tillson avenue mitt mansion last night in the third and fifth rounds, but came back like a whirlwind and many of the ring-side gentry thought him entitled to a draw with Johnnie Lawless of Milinocket.

Bobby Pancho of Bangor, whose name has rather a Mexican ring, was as elusive as a jumping bean. In spite of his agility—and the fans would like to see him again—he was out-punched by Walter Reynolds.

Tarzan Marriner, who allowed he'd had enough of the ring, stayed in it less than one round with Axel Elliott. The boys were not evenly matched as to physical dimensions, Elliott having considerable poundage on the jungle hero.

Jabber Hastings, a triple C threat, was too much for K. O. Dyer of Franklin, but it was a good scrap. Earle English, also from the Camden barracks, swept down on Jim Gorman of Bangor like a West Indies cyclone; swept him right out of the ring in the get-acquainted round. Percy Colson, who doesn't like to be called Percy or Algernon, had a wheat threshing contest with Charlie Brann. And the flails landed! But they didn't.

Average farm real estate taxes per acre the country over decreased 5 percent from 1933 to 1934. But taxes in New England increased 4 percent during the same period.

NEW OLDS DEALER

The Fireproof Garage Sales Co. Now Selling Famous Automobile

The new 1936 Oldsmobile will be offered at lower prices, according to A. E. Hunt, Manager of Fireproof Garage Sales Co., Oldsmobile dealer in Rockland.

Although every proven feature necessary to safety, comfort, performance and economy has been retained and many new ones added in the new 1936 Oldsmobile, the prices will be lower, the Olds dealer said. "In addition to those advantages which have contributed so heavily to Oldsmobile success . . . such as knee action wheels, super hydraulic brakes, solid steel 'turret top' body . . . many new refinements of motor, body and chassis have been built into the new 1936 models."

"Safety glass is now standard equipment throughout, in all body types. Electro hardened aluminum alloy pistons give increased economy of operation and smoother, livelier performance. Scores of other improvements have been built into the new cars. And despite the many additional values in these new cars the new low prices will effect reductions of as much as $57.50 in the delivered price of the Oldsmobile Eight and $17.50 in the delivered price of the Oldsmobile Six."

List prices at Lansing were quoted by the Oldsmobile dealer as follows: Oldsmobile Six business coupe, $665; sport coupe, $730; 5-passenger coupe, $755; convertible coupe, $805; four door sedan, $795; four door touring sedan, $820. Oldsmobile Eight business coupe, $810; sport coupe, $845; five passenger coupe, $845; five passenger touring coupe, $870; convertible coupe, $935; four door sedan, $910; and four door touring sedan, $935.—adv.

And you hear the yowls and gobble of the struttin' turkey-cock,
And the cluckin' of the guineys, and the cluckin' of the hens,
And the rooster's halloooyer as he tips-toes on the fence;
O, it's then the times a feller is a-feelin' in 'at his best,

A NEEDED CAMPAIGN

That the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is organized for a country-wide campaign against the legalized rum trade is suggested in the statement issued by the Union's president, Mrs. Ida Wise Smith, in which she presents six points of attack upon which she contends the future of the temperance movement depends. They are:

1.—The nationwide efforts of the liquor interests to break down and erase all laws and ordinances of every State and community against the (liquor) traffic's invasion of our homes, our social life and the field of legitimate industry.

2.—The appalling spread of traffic accidents due to drinking drivers and pedestrians.

3.—The startling recent of appeal in this year's $20,000,000 liquor advertising.

4.—The projection of a ten years' campaign by a group of men and women, socially and financially prominent, under the name of the council for moderation; a proposal of the utmost advantage to and welcomed by the liquor traffic.

5.—The rapid development of plans to legalize gambling and the movement proposing congressional sanction for a national lottery.

6.—Evidence of an awakening of wide interest in a more constructive program of education in regard to the alcohol problem—the scientific, social, economic and moral phases and a growing response of youth to the whole challenge of the liquor evil.

Tomorrow will be observed as world temperance Sunday, in which these half-dozen points are to have special consideration, as an initial movement in a campaign that will be steadily carried on for the protection of society from a gigantic evil. Victories by the women have been won in other such campaigns. They will not fail in the present momentous occasion.

A MEMORIAL TO WILL

The organized movement for the erection of a memorial to Will Rogers is meeting with nation-wide response. Captain Frank Hawkes, world-famous speed flyer, is to spend forty days flying over every State in the nation in a work of organization that shall enable the millions of friends of the famous humorist to honor his memory with a subscription. What form the memorial will take is not yet suggested, but, says Capt. Hawkes, "certainly, there will be no cold marble shaft for this warm, friendly man. Rather, there will be living, continuing memorials to be used for charitable, educational and humanitarian purposes." If each of the friends of Will Rogers were to contribute no more than a dime apiece, the total of the sum created should make possible a memorial the cost of which would run into the millions. And every bit deserved.

THE DAINTY OF THE TABLE

It is gratifying to observe that our friendly occupant of the Republican Journal's editorial chair also retains memories of the well-conditioned table. Musing upon this column's recent allusion to a one-time universal favorite of the properly supervised home table, blanc-mange, he finds it difficult to give way altogether to pessimistic emotions. Irish moss, he alleges, continues to be encountered on the grocery shelf, and there still are to be found discriminating cooks who understand the proper use of it; but he adds:

"If recollection serves us well, it was not economy of money but of time and labor that led to the disappearance of the dainty. An extensively advertised substitute produced a fine appearing concoction as white as the driven snow, and just as tasteless, in a time of the time. It is this abomination, masquerading under the old name, that cooks of the present generation know as blanc-mange, and they can not be blamed for omitting it from their menus. A-bas, cornstarch! Hoch, der Irish moss!"

Our contemporary's display of emotion does credit equally to his heart and his bringing up. Let every home continue to A-bas and also Hoch until more of these wholesome fashions of earlier times are restored to us.

The dairy farmers of Knox County are entitled to two delegates at the annual meeting of the New England Milk Producers' Association in Boston, Oct. 29 and 30. There are two NEMPA locals in the county. The official delegates from these locals are W. A. Ayer of Union and Arthur L. Perry, Jr., of Warren. Maine as a whole is entitled to 85 voting delegates. Maine has two NEMPA directors, L. E. McIntire of East Waterford and P. E. Chandler of Dover, and the vice president of the association is W. E. Knight of Clinton.

MAKE IT UNANIMOUS

New York Tribune Reviews Gen. Johnson's Extraordinary Attack Upon the New Deal

After reading General Hugh Johnson's devastating criticism of the New Deal in "The Saturday Evening Post," about all that is left for a Republican critic to do is to "move to make the vote unanimous." If the staunchest and ablest of the President's supporters, one who has taken beating after beating in his loyal efforts to save the New Deal from disaster is now moved thus to damn all its works from the gold-coin legislation to the A. A. A. what remains? Not the Liberty League nor any Republican has gone as far in criticism as does this life-long Democrat and Roosevelt advocate. Perhaps a few sentences, touching various topics and taken from separate parts of the article, will give in briefest form the substance of the indictment. These, for example:

"The blueprint of the New Deal was good. The hopeless tangle of today is not a maze of paths then platted. It is a snarl of tangents and departures. Confusion of counsel, incompetence of administrators, terrible timing, no co-ordination, bad staff work and divided and contradictory purposes—these are fair criticisms."

"This was the proposed New Deal. It was based on a strong foundation in fundamentals. The cornerstone was sound money, a reduction of 25 per cent in the routine cost of government, a corresponding reduction in taxes, a balance of the budget, a ban on future Federal financing and an almost religious devotion to the maintenance of the credit of the United States."

"With the abandonment of sound money went also its fiscal basis—economy, balanced budgets and reduced spending and taxation. From that moment, free investment, vigorous commercial activity—all the necessary elements of natural recovery were under the shadow of a Great Fear. It is the effective single cause of continued depression."

"Instead of following those principles, the A. A. A. is erasing export markets for both the raw and the finished products of agriculture. It is on its way to the creation of a new undigested and indigestible surplus. It has made no progress toward a permanent solution of the agricultural problem. On the contrary, it leaves the basic condition worse than ever."

"The second obstacle to recovery is unemployment. The F. W. A. program is a complete flop in its first half, and a thinly disguised and very expensive dole in its second half."

"If it is not immediately taken in hand, it will present this country with the worst crisis of the depression—an unprecedented blunder!"

"Shortly after election there began to occur one of the cleverest infiltrations in the history of our government. There was no noise about it. The professor (Felix Frankfurter) himself has refused every official connection. His comings and goings are almost surreptitious. Yet he is the most influential single individual in the United States."

"His 'boys' have been insinuated into obscure but key positions in every vital department—wardens of the marches, inconspicuous but powerful."

"To them the Constitution is just a foil for clever fencing—an antediluvian joke to be respected in public like a sacred cow and regarded in private somewhat as Gertrude Stein regarded the poet Tennyson, or any other Victorian."

"Their idea is that government is the nucleus of a vast collectivism in which business or any private enterprise is just an element to be absorbed."

"Their thought here was that the Supreme Court and the Constitution could be put on the spot as a scapegoat in the public eye, and government could thus move by a short cut to collectivism. They recognize that as a blunder now but they were very positive then."

"Now, this is not government on the American plan. These pundits represent nobody and nothing but their own 'advanced' ideas. Nor do they ever put themselves in any exposed position of personal responsibility. They are bidders within."

"The mistaken but exalted strategy was to create a Roosevelt following rather than a Democratic organization."

"The President's prestige has seriously declined and the organization which it was to replace is rickety and ruinous."

"If, as seems likely, A. A. A. is knocked out and nothing replaces it, great masses of farmers in rock-ribbed Republican states will return to the faith of their fathers."

These are blunt words. Spoken by an insider, who has watched the Roosevelt administration from its innermost Council Chambers, they carry devastating weight. The general to be sure, insists repeatedly that the original plan of the New Deal—as expounded in the '32 platform—was sound. All that is needed today is for the President to turn a double back-somersault abandon all that he has been doing and advocating for two solid years—in short, rescue the country from himself and his "brain trust!" Of course the general sees neither hope nor health in the Republican party. He is too loyal a partisan for that.

But the time is short, he concedes. "Think Fast, Captain!" is the title of his article, and the admonition seems clearly uttered in the direction of the White House. It is good advice. But it comes, we suggest, a trifle belatedly. Most Americans, not so closely tied to the President by bonds of loyalty, have already done their thinking.

27 Varieties OF DEPOSITS

Through the receiving tellers' windows at the bank, pass 27 varieties of deposits—checks, money-orders, drafts, certificates-of-deposit, discounted notes, etc.

Depositors consider all these forms of exchange as money and the bank accepts them as cash. But they are not cash. The bank has to make collection and turn them into cash through a complicated "clearing" system between the banks of the country, maintained at great expense.

Even cash or currency costs the bank in handling expense and insurance.

Your knowledge of these facts and your cooperation are necessary to properly maintain these indispensable facilities.

THE BOWLING FEVER

Camden Has Bad Case Of Candle Pin Disease—Some Details

The bowling contagion has struck Camden for this season and three leagues are engaged in the most strenuous contests the Camden Y.M.C.A. alleys have ever known. In the American League Division the teams were arrayed in the following order, as of Oct. 18:

	W	L	P.C.	P.P.
Giants,	8	0	1.000	1293
Rockport,	8	0	1.000	1275
Braves,	9	3	.750	1368
American Legion,	8	4	.667	1302
Y. M. C. A.,	5	3	.625	1335
Firemen,	4	4	.500	1322
Lions,	6	6	.500	1233
Camden Mill,	3	5	.375	1293
All Stars,	1	11	.083	1201
Rotary,	0	16	.000	1188

W. Richards is the league hero thus far, having the high single (132) and the high total (322). The Braves, and they must not be associated with a certain lowly ball team of that name, have high single string (538), and high team total (1441), new last week.

The 10 leading bowlers in this league are:

Stevenson, 100.2; Freeman, 98;
Richards, 97; Grover, 96.4; Calder-
wood, 95.3; Wellman, 95.1; Herrick,
94.1; E. Gross, 93.3; Boynton, 92.4;
Hobbs, 92.1.

The Triple C's are leading in the National Division, where the rating, as of Oct. 18 was:

	W	L	P.C.	P.P.
CCC Camp,	7	1	.875	1173
Red Triangles,	5	3	.625	1263
Smokeaters,	6	3	.625	1131
Shells,	7	5	.583	1180
Business Men,	0	12	.000	1069
Mystery Five,	0	0	.000	0000

High individual single in the American Division is held by Richardson with a string of 127, and to him is also credited high total, 300. The Red Triangles have high team single (457) and high team total, (1316). The 10 leading bowlers are:

Richardson, 92.1; Wheeler, 89; A. F. Sherman, 87.5; Leonard, 85.2; R. Bell, 84.1; R. McCobb, 83.5; Bennett, 82; H. Nash, 81.7; Galanti, 81.5; Martz, 81.3.

The Ladies' Bowling League is a sort of garden club affair, each team being named for some familiar flower. The Violets are blossoming most vigorously at present, but the teams are quite well bunched, as seen by this standing—as of Oct. 16:

Team,	Won	Lost	P.C.
Violets,	3	1	.750
Dandylions,	2	2	.500
Buttercups,	2	2	.500
Lilies,	1	3	.250

Feminine skill as shown in this league has been quite impressive, for here is Miss Gunning with a string of 88 and a total of 236, leading the league thereby. The Dandylions have high team single (339) and high team total (935). The averages of the lady bowlers are:

Grace Gunning,	78.2
Olive Weaver,	73.0
Margaret Crockett,	69.2
Mary Dyer,	68.0
Dot Wentworth,	67.1
Pearl Nash,	66.2
Adele Maynard,	65.2

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY'S TASK

Restore Recovery Is the Job Set For Those Who Believe In This Country's Future

By Nicholas Roosevelt

For the National Republican Builders, Inc.

Promises broken, bonds repudiated, extravagance practiced in place of thrift, self-reliance undermined by government subsidies, rugged individualism not only belittled but derided—these are but a few of the demoralizing by-products of the New Deal which threaten to weaken and undermine the American character.

When the government of the United States repudiates its obligation to pay in gold; when the President of the United States blithely and repeatedly does the opposite of what he promised to do; when the Administration pours out with reckless extravagance, the billions which it has neither earned nor yet possesses; when, from the President down, all those qualities of self-reliance, individual initiative and courage in the face of difficulties are derided by the Administration leaders—it is hard to prevent these bad examples from permeating the country and upsetting the old standards through which the American people grew great.

It is a subtle poison, this—and terribly hard to counteract. Speaking about it last spring with deep concern, Governor Landon of Kansas expressed the wish that we had a man of the calibre of former President Theodore Roosevelt among us who by example and word could restore to the American people their sense of right and wrong and their belief in the old morality.

Smart intellectuals made it a practice to deride former President Roosevelt (and later, Calvin Coolidge) for acting as if they had discovered the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, and for continually preaching the homely and everlasting truths that they contain.

But as one looks back on what has happened, and, in particular, as one sees the complete disregard of the old truths by the New Dealers, it becomes clearer than ever that a moral re-awakening is necessary and is, in reality, part of the political problem which the country faces today. Certainly if the Republican nominee possesses any of the deep moral fervor and conviction of the elder Roosevelt or of Calvin Coolidge he will have a great opportunity to serve his country by restoring faith in the ideals which the New Dealers have discredited.

What are these ideals? In the first place that a promise is binding, that a bond is sacred. This rests at the very basis of our civilization and our political structure. Americans used to believe that the government's promise was as good as gold. Under the Roosevelt administration they discovered that it was worth only what those in power were pleased to say it was worth.

In the next place, thrift. Even though Americans have always liked to "take a chance" American civilization was built out of the savings and the self-denial—which means the thrift—of millions of American families. They were taught from childhood to "make both ends meet." The principle of "pay-as-you-go" was well established. Debts were shunned and abhorred.

But the Roosevelt Administration cried, "Spend, spend, spend!" and then urged everyone to borrow as much as he possibly could. Not content with this it sought to penalize the thrifty by taking away from them as much as possible of what they had laid aside for a rainy day. The principle of "pay-as-you-go" was dropped for the "charge it" system. To our children is left the task of paying for our extravagances and experiments.

In the third place, self-reliance. "Stand on your feet!" was the ideal taught to every self-respecting American child, and in later life, "Strike out for yourself" and "Feather your own nest." The individual was taught to rely on his own efforts, his own strength and ingenuity. He carved his own way in the world without turning to Uncle Sam for assistance.

But the New Deal has changed all that. Rugged individualism is sneered at. The government seeks to protect, help guide and support the individual. It is fostering his sense of dependence and undermining his tradition of independence.

In the fourth place, industry. From early youth the older Americans were prepared for a life of work. Not only the pioneers but many of their descendants devoted a lifetime to hard, unremitting labor. They grumbled and complained, but they kept at it. The result was Twentieth Century America, with its greater share of the good things of this world for a greater share of the population than was ever before seen in any century. But the New Deal is supporting millions in idleness. It is seeking to curtail the hours of work. It is reducing the area planted to crops on the farms. It is restricting, protecting, sheltering, subsidizing—and mollycoddling—a whole section of our population.

The trouble is, as already explained that these poisons work subtly and dangerously. But unless the nation has grown "soft" as so many of the New Dealers hope and believe, they must be eradicated if the nation is to survive.

The next Republican President, therefore, must be more than a politician. He must be a great leader, a man who is not afraid to preach the old truths and set an example by his own and his administration's acts.

The American spirit must be healed, and the virus of protectionism, collectivism, coercionism and New Dealism—call it what you will—permanently eliminated.

Honesty, thrift, self-reliance and industry are more than ever in demand.

IS ASKIN' DAN

An Appleton Writer Whose Sympathies Are With the Innocent

South Appleton, Oct. 24

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

"Spice its safe, Dannie, to go down across the pasture to the partridge nest at the base of the old pine? Since the law is off, or is it on, Dan, we hardly dare venture beyond our door for fear these big game hunters will mistake us for elephants or kangaroos or some such and then who would finish putting the windows and wheelbarrow the dressing around the raspberry bed?"

What difference does it make anyway, Dan, about the law which licenses wholesale slaughter of wild life under the spongy guise of "partridge hunting"? When it's off, or on, whichever it is, the pop, pop of the death dealing gun in the hands of nice, big soldierlike men as well as boys just out of the cradle sees to it that no flutter of winged life or scurry of feet among the falling leaves is left to remind us of the once abundant wild life which had only intelligent Indians to fear.

What have you found, Dan, close by the old pine? Why, Dannie, it is a Northern Downy Woodpecker, a male, see the red patch, or is it blood, on what is left of its head! Good shots weren't they, Dan? Perhaps you can't understand why they did it as long as he was after insects, grubs or larvae and not trying to steal our pocket-book, slander his neighbor or set fire to our buildings. You are thick-headed any way, Dan, just ask any of our able legislators, who must do something to earn their salaries, and they will explain the game laws to your satisfaction.

You don't want to look at the empty partridge nest after we have come way down here, Dan! You foolish old thing! But she was a timid faithful mother and tried so many times to make us believe she just wasn't there. "No doubt the three or four ounces of meat on her breast compensated for her killing, but you can't see it that way, you old numbskull!"

Another Nature Lover.

As a fitting prelude to next Tuesday evening's lecture on "Soviet Russia As It is Today," by Albert K. Dawson, Mr. Hara has prepared a program that is at once preponderantly Russian and tuneful. Opening with a march by Rebikov, it then includes in order, the "Valse des Fleurs" and the "Dance of the Gandy Fairies" from Tschalkovsky's "Nut Crack Suite"; "Black Eyes," a Russian tune Horlick's familiar "Two Gullars," and finally "Serenade" by Rachmaninoff.

The organ concert will begin promptly at 7.45, and will conclude approximately 8.15, when the illustrated lecture will get under way.

IN THE CHURCHES

SERMONETTE

Christ's life was the climax of history, its zenith. His death the crowning tragic summit of events. From His cross comes salvation if we seek it. The mystery of it is do not comprehend. To those who receive Him, He gave this power to become the sons of God. The happenings of all time center upon that cross and reach from it to us, if we believe on His name. So difficult that no philosophy can comprehend, so simple that the youngest child can thus believe.

A remarkably fine program of pictures is scheduled for next week at Star Theatre. Tuesday comes one of the season's most popular hits, "Annapolis Farewell," a heart-gripping tale of the great naval academy with comedy, romance and a tragic lesson combined to make a truly memorable story. Thursday brings a rousing comedy with the one and only Joe E. Brown in the role he loves above all others—baseball. Saturday comes the historic adventure novel "The Virginian," a story so fine and ably directed that the English classes in Rockland High were asked by their teachers to attend its recent presentation at Park Theatre. The picture gives Gary Cooper what is probably his best role in a long series of successes.

ST. GEORGE

Henry E. Rackliff

Death visited this community Oct. 18 and took there from one of the most beloved of its older citizens, Henry Edgar Rackliff, who was ever regarded as a good neighbor and kind friend. Mr. Rackliff was of genial nature with a goodly touch of humor which often caused much merriment among his companions at social gatherings. He was a kind and loving husband and father.

This town where he was born Nov. 10, 1856 had been Mr. Rackliff's home nearly all his life, with the exception of earlier years which he spent in seafaring. When a young man he joined the life-saving crew, as it was then called, at White Head. He also worked at paving cutting for a time. During later years he had been engaged in lobstering, and in 1918, with his oldest son Eugene, he entered the weir business at which he worked until failing health prevented continuance. He was a member of St. George Baptist Church.

Mr. Rackliff was married Oct. 27, 1876 to Susan F. Elwell of this community, who survives him, together with six of their seven children, four sons, Eugene, Edgar, Walter and Ramond, all of this town; and two daughters, Mrs. Fred Miller and Mrs. Charles Sholes of East Weymouth, Mass.

WHY CHRYSLER LEADS

E. O. Philbrook & Son Show the Reason—The New Plymouth

Ever since Walter P. Chrysler brought out the first car bearing his name back in 1924, and with it scrapped most of the engineering traditions of the industry, the public has looked to Chrysler for advanced engineering. "The best things first" has become the company's watchword and it has been lived up to consistently.

For this reason, the public is awaiting the announcement of the Chrysler 1936 line in the belief that it will again contain some startling news. Full details of the 1936 Chrysler must await the formal announcement but it is no secret that this company has again lived up to its reputation as a pioneer and that the new cars will include a number of exclusive features that insure improved performance, greater luxury and an added measure of safety.

The success of the Chrysler automatic overdrive in the Airflow line made it inevitable that Chrysler would eventually extend this feature to the lower-priced cars in the line. It is understood that this has been achieved and that the overdrive is to be had in the Chrysler Six and DeLuxe Eight at a slight extra cost. The value of the overdrive has been so thoroughly demonstrated in the last two years that its application to smaller and lower-priced cars can hardly be over-estimated.

The original Chrysler was a six-cylinder car offered in six body styles. For the first year the four-cylinder market was supplied by the Maxwell car, which had been greatly improved under Mr. Chrysler's direction. In 1925, the Maxwell name was discontinued and the Chrysler Four offered to the public. Three years later the newly organized Plymouth division took over the four-cylinder production of Chrysler, this car subsequently becoming a six.

Chrysler waited until 1930 to enter the eight-cylinder field. This was considerably later than several other manufacturers, but Chrysler engineers were not content to announce an eight until they were sure that all the "bugs" had been eliminated from this type of engine. With the advent of the eight, the six-cylinder car was discontinued to take care of the lower-priced field. Chrysler was one of the first manufacturers to produce an eight selling for under $1000, one model of the 1931 line listing at $895 f. o. b. Detroit.

In 1931, Floating Power, a type of rubber engine mounting in which the engine is permitted to revolve on its own center of mass, was introduced in the Plymouth car. This feature insulated the body of the car against all power tremors and produced a smoothness previously unapproached in a four-cylinder car. So successful was Floating Power in a four-cylinder engine that the next year it was extended to all Chrysler engines. It continues to be one of the most important features of the entire Chrysler line.

Following close on the heels of Floating Power came automatic clutch, all-silent transmission centrifuge brake drums and alloy valve seat inserts.

Now the word has gone out that Chrysler is going to make "good cars very much better." As one of the executive staff expressed it, "In the 1936 line the entire Chrysler engineering staff is in full accord on every detail of design. When it is possible to get a large group of engineering geniuses to agree on anything, no higher praise could be imagined."

Realm of Music

Sigurd Nilssen, renowned Norwegian baritone, known to many here through Camden appearances, recently figured in a radio program of unusual interest, that of Oct. 9 arranged between this country and Norway as a formal observance of what will be known henceforth as Leiv Eiriksson Day. Mr. Nilssen sang the solo part in Edvard Grieg's "Landkjenning."

A review of the occasion is of interest, for little is generally known of Leiv Eiriksson who landed on this North American continent almost 500 years before Christopher Columbus. The following statement by Hon. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, was read by Major S. J. Arnesen: "The flag of the United States is being displayed today on all government buildings in memory of Leiv Eiriksson in pursuance to a resolution of the Congress and a proclamation by the President of the United States. This honor and the ceremonies which are being held in many places constitute a fitting tribute to a man by a country which was the field of his explorations. In expressing the hope that the celebrations today will fix in our minds a respectful memory of this historical figure, I wish to add a word of profound respect for those of his countrymen who in large numbers have helped to develop the United States."

Among the speakers from our side was Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who said: "Greetings from America to those European lands which shared in the discovery of America. Greetings in particular to Norway, to Iceland, and to Greenland. The proclamation of Oct. 9 as a holiday places the Scandinavian discoverer, Leiv Eiriksson on a level with the Latin re-discoverer, Columbus. To that extent it is to American Scandinavians a day of rejoicing, as shown, for instance, by a special English-language issue of Nordisk Tidende in New York."

"Rightly this broadcast is particularly directed to Norway as a leader in the discovery. But this deserved tribute to one country should not, and does not, obscure what a happy thing it is that Leiv Eiriksson can be a satisfying emblem of the whole long series of heroic adventures, shared in by many countries, that finally led to the double achievements which his day commemorates, the first crossing of the Atlantic Ocean and the discovery of the mainland of North America."

"We need to make at least six acknowledgements when we commemorate the westward struggle. The first is double, to Ireland and to the Church, for Irishmen on a religious pilgrimage took the first and longest step when they crossed half the Atlantic to discover and occupy Iceland in 795 A. D. Sweden comes next, for in 860 they were the first Scandinavians to reach Iceland. The third step was after 876 by Norwegians for they furnished 60 percent of the colonists of Iceland (the rest were mainly Irish). Norwegians primarily were responsible for building in Iceland the first republic north of the Alps. The fourth step was taken by the citizens of Iceland, when under Erik the Red, they occupied Greenland following 986 and established there the first republic of that New World which was destined to become the home of republics."

"The fifth and last step was taken on a date easy to remember, for it was in the year 1000 that Leiv Eiriksson, a citizen of Greenland, first saw our continent. He was fortunately situated for many to share in his later commemoration. Nordics point to his achievement as a fruit of Viking civilization; Christians emphasize that he was on a missionary voyage; Roman Catholics note that bishops of the church which he founded in Greenland continued to be appointed by the Papacy in unbroken series for 500 years, until 1530, so that there was an American bishop holding office when Columbus sailed."

"The last country we mention in particular today is Denmark, which has a conspicuous position in the relation of the Scandinavian peoples in America, for she controls that largest of American islands which once was the Republic of Greenland. "Leiv Eiriksson Day of 1935 commemorates the achievements of the past. The near future may bring a tribute even more substantial. For the press of the Scandinavian countries is already beginning to describe as the 'Leiv Eiriksson Airway to Europe' that plan which both Americans and Europeans have been studying for some years and which aims to cross the North Atlantic from America to Greenland and Iceland, thus reversing the tracks of the explorers."

Anthony Biddle Drexel, American minister in Norway, told of his interest in the old Viking ships which are now preserved in a museum, and said: "Realizing that it was in a similar boat, a small open craft, that Leiv Eiriksson and his companions ventured to cross the Atlantic, I was all the more impressed by the courage, daring, and the navigating acumen of this pioneer."

The program came in clear as a bell, and was a brilliant demonstration of the wonders of radio.

Doris Doe, Metropolitan contralto, left Oct. 17 for a tour of this country with the Metropolitan Quartet Queens Maria, Miss Doe, Martinelli, and Pinza, and also for appearances in San Francisco with the Metropolitan Opera Company in November. Miss Doe will be the youngest contralto heard in major roles during the production of Wagner's "Ring" cycle there.

Many colleges are reporting a "musical renaissance." Outstanding is Cornell University where there is an increase of 17 per cent in the number of those registered in the formal undergraduate courses of the music department, and where also there is increased interest in the graduate field such as has not been known in many years. For the first time in the history of the department students are registered as candidates for the degree of Master of Fine Arts, with concentration in original composition. Also a limited number of students have been accepted for the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy in the field of musicology.

Musical Courier in the Oct. 19th issue carried a picture of "The Two Josefs," taken at Camden, and showing Josef Hofmann under the piano fixing a pedal which had gone wrong while Josef Lefevine was at the keyboard.

The results of the first year campaign proved what could be done by promoting the entire coast as a summer play-ground and recreation center.

After the booklet had been compiled and completed by a master mind in the advertising business, D. W. Hoegg of Portland, the problem remained to get them into the hands of the thousands who were seeking a place to go for their vacation. The first method used was to place news-

The coast of Maine is becoming better known each year and the results speak well for the definite and determined effort on the part of these service clubs which are doing this as a major activity. Head Of Great Vicks Organization Places First Faith In Home-town Newspapers

"We are using newspapers again this year, as for many years past, as the chief means of carrying our story of better control of colds into homes throughout the world."

This statement was made recently at Greensboro, N. C., by Lunsford Richardson, president of Vicks Chemical Company (makers of Vicks VapoRub and other specialized aids for home control of colds). Mr. Richardson spoke immediately after signing orders for his company's fall and winter advertising.

"We have always placed newspapers at the top of our list," continued Mr. Richardson, "because each paper represents an established institution in its community, and a newspaper talks to its readers in their own language."

REVOLUTIONARY PENSIONERS OF KNOX COUNTY, MAINE

By Edward Kalloch Gould, State Historian of Maine

(CHAPTER XLVIII.)

Benjamin Smith

Benjamin Smith of Hope was born in Stoughton, Mass., now Canton, July 17, 1756, and enlisted as a volunteer private in Capt. Wm. Bent's Company, Col. John Groaton's Massachusetts Regiment in April, 1775, soon after the battle of Lexington. He joined his Company at Roxbury, Mass., and marched with it to Squantum and there remained for some time, guarding the cattle and the inhabitants of the Island, and alternated between that place and Roxbury till he was dismissed at the end of the term of enlistment at Roxbury, when he returned to Stoughton. The officers under whom he served were Col. John Groaton, Capt. Wm. Bent, and Elias Drake, first Lieutenant.

In the spring he was employed as a substitute by his brother who had just enlisted for one year to serve in Capt. Parson's Company then stationed at Dorchester Neck, remaining in this Company about 11 months when he employed a substitute to complete his year and returned to Stoughton. After he had employed the substitute he gave one day's work gratis collecting faggots for a new fort to be erected between Dorchester Heights and the Castle.

He again enlisted as a private in the Massachusetts line for three months and joined his company at Dorchester Hill in the spring of 1777, and served his term nearly out under Capt. Stephen Pennington. Two or three days before his term had expired the troops being ordered to Fort Hill, he enlisted as a volunteer and served another three months under the same Captain when he was dismissed and went home to Stoughton in the first part of the winter.

In September 1777, he was drafted in the Militia of Massachusetts to serve for the term of three or four months and joined Col. Stephen Bradley's Company of Col. Gill's Regiment at Roxbury. Thence he marched with his Company and Regiment to Stillwater and Bemis Heights and was at the taking of Gen. Burgoyne's Army in October. Having been drafted and serving in the capacity of a sergeant with 13 men under him, they were employed in carrying messages from Gen. Gates to Gen. Burgoyne after the British Army had been surrounded by the Americans, and Smith personally conducted Gen. Burgoyne to the headquarters of Gen. Gates when he surrendered his Army. At the engagement previous to this, he saw Gen. Benedict Arnold when he received a wound. After the surrender he and his company marched to Albany and then to White Plains where he was discharged, his term of enlistment having expired.

He again enlisted in Capt. Bradley's Company for the term of three months and the company marched from White Plains to New Jersey and then to Pennsylvania in pursuit of the British. After this the Company marched back to White Plains where Smith was dismissed either in February 1778, returning to Stoughton. After this he volunteered his services in the Army without belonging to any particular company, and continued in the service until the fall previous to the peace of 1783, having served in the Revolution in all about six years. He was 76 years old when he applied for a pension Oct. 17, 1832.

Benjamin Smith died Aug. 6, 1843. Feb. 15, 1845, Anna Smith, his widow, applied for a pension, giving her residence as Searsmont. She states she was married to Benjamin Smith Sept. 25, 1789, in Winthrop, Mass., by Rev. Mr. Jewett.

Benjamin Smith had also lived in Belmont and had several children Christian Smith, one of these children was married in Belmont in 1811 or 1812.

Jonathan Smith

Jonathan Smith of North Haven was a corporal in Capt. Archibald McAllister's Company, Lieut. Col. Joseph Prime's Massachusetts Regiment; entered service April 12, 1780; discharged Dec. 22, 1780; served under Brigadier General Peleg Wadsworth at the Eastward. He also entered as a private at Dunbarton, N. H., April 4, 1777 in the 1st N. H. Regiment, and was discharged Oct. 26, 1777.

March 20, 1786, for 30 pounds he conveyed to Jonathan Smith, Jr., of Cumberland, Providence Plantation 100 acres of land on Fox Island (Vinalhaven, Maine). Oct. 8, 1789, Cyril Brown and John Williams for 88 pounds conveyed to Jonathan

Smith of North Fox Island (North Haven) nine acres of North Harbor. The census of 1790 places Jonathan Smith in Vinalhaven without a family (North Haven was then a part of Vinalhaven.)

Oliver Smith

Oliver Smith of Thomaston, was a private in Capt. Silas Cobb's Company, Col. Timothy Walker's Massachusetts Regiment; enlisted May 2, 1775; service three months and one week. This company consisted of men from the towns of Norton, Mansfield and Taunton, and the Regiment was known as the Third in the Provincial Army in May and June 1775. June 16, 1775, the Regiment was included in a list of organizations stationed at the camp at Roxbury and at the several "Parts" to the southward. After Gen. Washington took command of the Army in July, this Regiment was assigned to Brigadier Gen. Joseph Spencer's Brigade, Major Gen. Artemas Ward's Division, and continued to serve as before in the fortifications at Roxbury.

Oliver Smith probably moved to Thomaston, during the year of 1777, or the latter part of 1776. He was also private in Capt. Benjamin Lemont's Co., Col. John Allen's Massachusetts Regiment; service at Machias, from Oct. 2, to Dec. 31, 1777.

He was a native of Norton, Mass., and came to Thomaston with his brother Abithar. He was a blacksmith having served his time at Easton, and had a shop 70 or 80 rods northeast of Mill River bridge where Josiah Reed subsequently built the house later occupied by Noyes Pales. The farm connected which he took up but never obtained a deed of from the Proprietors, ultimately passed into the hands of Dr. Dodge, and was later occupied by his son, E. G. Dodge, Esq.

Having married a daughter of Capt. Nathaniel Pales, Smith's relatives and friends did what they could to sustain him in business; but his temperament and habits ill-fitted him for the acquisition of property. He was much employed in burning lime. Having taken some offence against one of the Butlers, he extended, and for a long time obstinately retained his resentment against the whole family of that name. A stranger coming to town for the purchase of a cow, and learning that Smith had one for sale but was then absent at Owl's Head, rode over to that place to find him. On his way meeting a man in the woods he inquired if his name was Oliver Smith, and if he had a cow for sale. An affirmative answer was given, and after some further conversation as to the quality and price of the animal, a bargain was struck, and the stranger was to pay the money and take the cow the following day. Just as he was taking leave, however, Smith inquired his name, "Butler" said the stranger, "Then you can't have my cow; said the other, "Why not, pray?" "Don't like the name" "But" said the stranger, "my money is good, I presume, if my name is not; and as to that, I am wholly unconnected with any of the Butlers hereabouts." "Can't help it," replied Smith; "if your name is Butler you can't have the cow. I am poor enough, heaven knows; but all the money a Butler ever owned cannot buy my cow."

Nov. 2, 1777, Oliver Smith of Thomaston conveyed for 15 pounds to Abithar Smith lot No. 14, lying in Thomaston on the neck on the Eastern side of St. Georges River, together with the Point of Rocks of 130 acres. Aug. 28, 1789, Oliver Smith of Thomaston conveyed for 30 pounds to David Mill Bennett 95 acres in Thomaston on the road to Camden. On April 15, 1791, Oliver Smith, and Rhoda, his wife for 30 pounds conveyed to Josiah Reed of Douglass, Mass., a lot of land in Thomaston with a dwelling house, blacksmith shop and barn thereon.
